Faculty Hall of Fame Award

1. History of the Award
The Loyola Marymount University Faculty Hall of Fame honors those people who have made significant contributions to the life of the university through their teaching, creative endeavors and scholarly work. Honorees, selected from the faculties of Loyola University, Marymount College, and Loyola Marymount University, are extraordinary examples of what it means to be a teacher-scholar in the Jesuit and Marymount educational traditions. The inaugural 15 members were inducted during the university's 2011-2012 Centennial Celebration, and new members were inducted every two to three years. In 2021, the criteria and selection process were changed.

2. Eligibility and Criteria
Nominees are required to meet the following criteria:

• Living nominees must have retired as full-time faculty members at least three years prior to nomination.
• Deceased faculty members are eligible regardless of whether they retired from LMU.
• All nominees must have taught full-time at LMU for at least 10 years. In exceptional circumstances, part-time faculty members with a comparable record of service will also be considered.

Criteria:
a. An eligible faculty member must have been outstanding in the three areas established by the university for the evaluation of faculty — teaching, scholarship and/or creative works, and service — AND
b. An eligible faculty member must have made a truly exceptional and lasting impact in at least one of the above areas.

For example:

• In the area of scholarship and/or creative works, the candidate must have reached and remained at the pinnacle of his or her field for a period of time sufficient to demonstrate a quality and magnitude greater than what might be ordinarily expected of someone occupying the same position and/or must have effected a profound, lasting positive influence on one’s discipline.
• In the area of teaching and learning, the candidate must have left a lasting legacy for students and colleagues involving teaching methods, research, curriculum development, diversity, equity and inclusion, and/or the creation of a preeminent learning environment.
• In the area of service, the candidate must have demonstrated a commitment to the LMU mission; the encouragement of learning, the education of the whole person, and the service of faith and the promotion of justice. This will be embodied in the candidate’s strong commitment to the University, to diversity, equality and inclusion, to fostering the holistic success of students through interactions outside of the classroom, and to the larger community.

Evidence:
Evidence that the articulated criteria have been met may come from detailed information about the candidate’s credentials, achievements, the impact and implications of those accomplishments, public awards and honors, and outside sources such as published articles and previously aired video or audio tapes.

3. Purpose of the Award
The purpose of the award is to reward faculty who made outstanding and significant contributions to LMU through teaching, research, creative and/or scholarly works and were honored as exemplars of the teacher-scholar model of the Jesuit and Marymount traditions.

4. Nominations
Nominations can be made by any member of the LMU community, current and past, faculty, staff, students, alumni and all others closely affiliated with the University and knowledgeable about faculty achievements and performance. Self-nominations are not permitted. LMU will induct one to two honoree(s) to the Faculty Hall of Fame every 2 years. In exceptional circumstances, a larger group of honorees can be inducted at the same time.

5. Supporting Evidence Nominators must submit all application materials, including letters of nomination and recommendation, to BOX by 5pm on March 1, 2021. Contact Amber Astredo in the Provost Office (ofd@lmu.edu), for access to BOX. Applicants should provide clear file names for all documents.

6. Review Procedures
The Faculty Awards Committee will review nominations and supporting evidence and make recommendations to the Provost.

7. The Award
